which can be separated should be withheld from transfer and made available for disposal to other agencies or to the public.

(6) Consideration should be given to the design, layout, geographic location, age, state of repair, and expected maintenance costs of excess real property proposed for transfer. It should be clearly demonstrated that the transfer will prove more economical over a sustained period of time than acquisition of a new facility specifically planned for the purpose.

(7) Excess real property should not be permanently transferred to agencies for programs which appear to be scheduled for substantial curtailment or termination. In such cases, the property may be temporarily transferred on a conditional basis, with an understanding that the property will be released for further Federal utilization or disposal as surplus property, at a time agreed upon when the transfer is arranged (see §101-47.203-8).

(e) Excess real property of a type which may be used for office, storage, and related purposes normally will be assigned by, or at the direction of, GSA for use to the requesting agency in lieu of being transferred to the agency.

(f) Federal agencies which normally do not require real property, other than for office, storage, and related purposes, or which may not have statutory authority to acquire such property, may obtain the use of excess real property for an approved program when authorized by GSA.
